My Freelance Work:

I graduated from University College Falmouth in 2010 with a BA (Hons) in Illustration, discovering a diverse range of disciplines to work in. I am self driven and highly motivated, and looking to increase my portfolio by taking on challenging and rewarding commissions.

I work both locally and internationally, and have a keen interest in children's picture books, non-fiction books, typography and fine art pieces. I also enjoy working on larger staggered projects and conceptual design, as well as indulging in playful imagery and paper engineering.

Often using textile and print techniques with traditional pen and ink, I find simple repetition of shape and pattern a common factor in each of my Illustrations. I make my own textures and integrate it with vintage materials in order to create my digital collage illustrations.

"Tori organised, publicised, hung and staffed an exhibition for her fellow students, at the St Ives Society of Artists. Throughout the process she was professional and organised and the success of the show was very much down her hard work. Her exhibited work was of a high standard and much admired by staff and visitors alike."
- April Brooks, 2010.
